*BIG GAY FICTION PODCAST CELEBRATES
PRIDE MONTH WITH A DIGITAL LITERARY FESTIVAL*

In a year when Pride celebrations are postponed or canceled, the Big Gay Fiction Podcast is spreading a little bit of feel-good rainbow joy with special bonus programming throughout the month of June.

“Finding new ways to celebrate Pride during these unique and difficult times is undoubtedly a challenge, but it is one that we can undertake with passion, creativity, and an open heart,” said Will Knauss, co-host of the podcast. “This year, whether you celebrate with friends, or by yourself, we hope that you’ll consider us part of your year-round Pride family.”

In addition to the five regular Monday episodes debuting in June, listeners can expect fifteen special mini-episodes. “It will be like a Pride-themed literary festival, but digital and available to listen to whenever is most convenient for you,” said co-host Jeff Adams. “We’re excited to welcome authors, narrators and other special guests for these bonus segments.”

Among the authors joining us to read from their work: Adriana Herrera, TJ Klune, Jay Northcote, Rick R. Reed, Julia Talbot, BA Tortuga, Silvia Violet, Max Walker and Julian Winters. Narrators Kirt Graves and Joel Leslie offer excerpts from their audiobooks. Some of our extended podcast family—Slade James from GayRomance.show: MM Author Podcast, Markie and Jess from Top to BOTM Podcast and Sarah Wendell from Smart Podcast, Trashy Books—stop by to share books that are meaningful to them. The bonus episodes will run select weekdays beginning Wednesday, June 3.

“While we draw strength from the unity of gathering together every year during the month of June, it’s important to remember our strength is innate – the pride we have is something we
